Edifice has announced that it will be offering its own version of a “summer sale” from 1st August – 30th September. During that period, any organisation that places an order for a “Snapshot Audit” will qualify for full reimbursement of the audit fees should additional work then be commissioned as a consequence.

Tony Angel, Edifice’s managing director, explains further: “It’s really important in the present economic climate to ensure that the business infrastructure is supported efficiently, and that FM is providing a best value solution. We’re aware that funds for external support can be the first to feel the squeeze and this is hugely counter-productive; our objective with this offer is to make it as easy as possible for organisations to call on the right expertise to help determine where changes and improvements will deliver most benefit to the bottom line.”

“The scope of the audit can be tailored to cover specific areas of concern, but we’d generally expect to consider the key areas of FM performance; these might include compliance, financial management, procurement strategy, supplier performance, etc. but the scope is largely client-driven. By identifying improvement areas, we can provide a focus for further work that will drive savings and enhance efficiency, and it’s in respect of such further activity that the initial audit fees will be reimbursed.”

Details of the Snapshot Audit can be found on the Edifice website, or by going direct to <http://www.edifice-fm.com/pdf/snapshotaudit.pdf>. Tony Angel can be reached by telephone on 020 8387 1434/07738 537759, or by email at tony.angel@edifice-fm.com.
